

10th 12 THINGS THAT'LL MAKE YOUR BATHROOM SMELL ALL NICE AND STUFF

Jul 2017

CONNECT WITH 'SHESAID'

BY Nadine Dilong

TAGS candles, bathroom, room fragrances

So you don't have to breathe through your mouth.

I'm a bit of a germophobe and spend a lot of my time cleaning my place, and while stains and clutter irritate me a lot, it's nasty smells that annoy me the most.

In contrast to some people who feel sick from certain fragrances, I'm not particularly sensitive to smells, so you can find scented candles in literally every room in my home, dryer sheets in my cupboards, and windows wide open even in Winter.

However, the area that's hardest to keep fresh is the bathroom – and we all know why – but it's not just our bowel movements that leave unpleasant smells behind, it's also the basins, drains and general moisture of everything.

It's imperative to open the windows or turn on the exhaust fan to air out bathrooms every day, but there are actually quite a few other things you can do to improve the smell of your washroom, too.

The fragrance industry has come a long way since overpowering lemon and lavender scented so-called air freshener sprays, which arguably only make matters worse by mixing with the bad smells instead of masking them.

These products will not only make you want to take a deep breath in your bathroom, they also look pretty adding a little bit of cosiness to what can be an otherwise boring and sterile place in your home.

1. Diptyque Scented Oval

EDITOR'S PICK

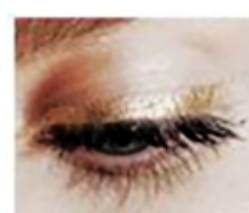

13 Relationship Experts Tell You Everything You Need To Know About Love

Want To Reignite Your Sex Life? Be Too Busy For Sex

4 Ways To Stop Overthinking From Ruining Your Relationships

This Is The Difference Between Liquid, Gel And Pen Eyeliner

2. Poo-Pourri Before You Go Toilet Spray

This punny little spray is super effective as you spray it in the toilet before you go. The essential oil blend then creates a film on the water surface that keeps all bad smells contained in the toilet bowl.